sustainability, environmental responsibility
RE-Y-STONE revolutionized interior design

Sustainability, environmental responsibility and innovation - these are the issues that concern people today, and influence their behaviour. Companies have a duty to exercise that responsibility and to think of future generations. Brands that are actively committed to sustainability and market the offensive are responsible, forward-looking and personable, and they convey to the customer that they are worth every euro. But carrying the tools of CI to the satisfaction by the interior design, were missing.

The world first RE-Y-STONE frees the interior from the boundaries of their existing facilities in terms of sustainability.

RE-Y-STONE is 100% organic, low-emission and petrol free and is able to combine functionality with the highest aesthetic standards and emotional design.

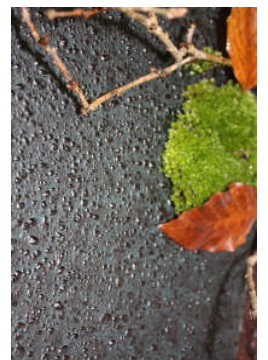

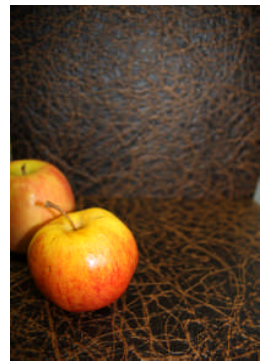

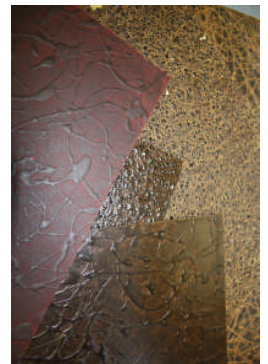

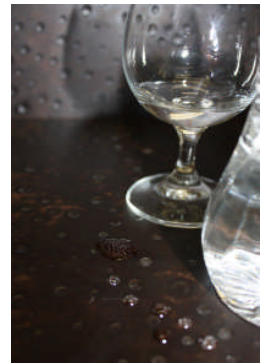

Recycled core and decorative paper and a natural resin, produced from the waste of sugar production, RE-Y-STONE is produced as hard, durable, high mechanical strength, dimensionally stable panel with solid surface.

Complete homogeneous, in deep black and warm brown colors, the RE-Y-STONE shows on its surface the many faces of nature, and seems still modern. Provide color decorative paper recycled or organic materials; structure is formed based on organically grown fibers, and the original reliefs pristine natural phenomena in unprecedented depth structure.

In the production of RE-Y-STONE we pay attention to the conservation of resources. So we meet our energy needs, for example, exclusively by green electricity from renewable energy (physical hydropower). The responsibility we have towards our environment, is aware of us and we act on it!

Also at the end of the long life of RE-Y-STONE convinced ecological. Due to its high calorific value, it is suitable for CO₂-neutral energy recovery as well as for re-use as filler in so-called wood-plastic composites.

Be inspired by RE-Y-STONE for the environmentally conscious architecture and use it as a powerful argument, or sustainable marketing!
